Fiji to harness talents to compete with the best : PM

17:05 Tue Oct 29, 2013

Fiji must harness the talents, energies and aspirations of its people to be more productive.

Prime Minister Voreqe Bainimarama says Fiji wants to compete with the best in a global market place that is more competitive and includes more players every day.

He adds that in order to do this we must be committed to quality, improvements and excellence.

“My government sees it as our duty to give our citizens what they need to meet the high standards we expect from them. Our main priorities have been to improve the roads, reform the ports, develop a robust wireless broadband regime that connects the entire country, wage a relentless fight against corruption, and invest in education.”

Bainimarama made the comments at the Asian Productivity Organization meeting in Nadi today.

Fiji's inclusion in the APO has made us more productive and efficient, and encourages better management to stay up-to-date with changes that are affecting the world's economy.
