To contribute to the enhancement of sustainable productivity in agriculture and the food industry in the ASEAN Least Developed Countries (LDCs) of Cambodia, Lao PDR, and Myanmar by supporting the capacity building of food-related agencies, NPOs, and food-processing and marketing enterprises

7. Background

Agriculture and the food industry play an important role in the economies of most APO member countries, in particular, the ASEAN LDCs. The sector provides employment and main sources of income, especially for the rural population. Thus development of the agriculture and food sector is indispensable for sustainable, inclusive socioeconomic development.

To improve the performance of the sector and increase the incomes of the rural population, there is a need to promote more advanced food value chains based on private-sector investments and public-private partnerships. The development of advanced food value chains will provide opportunities for small farmers and entrepreneurs to be part of the value chains, resulting in greater benefits for all stakeholders. To achieve this, it is essential to support their capacity building.

This is a three-year program (ASEAN-LDCs) consisting of capacity-building projects on productivity enhancement in agriculture and the food industry for ASEAN LDCs, in particular Cambodia, Lao PDR, and Myanmar. The program is funded by a special cash grant from the Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries of Japan.
